LGD to account for 30 % of diamond fashion and bridal jewellery at Walmart

Walmart has announced a huge expansion of its LGD offering which will see them account for 30 per cent of the diamond fashion and bridal jewelry sold across its 2,800 US stores. Walmart is the second biggest-grossing jeweler in North America (after Signet) with total watch and jewelry sales of $3.38bn in 2022. Its lab grown sales have increased 600 percent year-on-year.

It launched a core collection last year and has now expanded it to 80 styles in stores across wedding, rings, bracelets, necklaces, and earrings priced from $78 to $698 for a 1.5-carat solitaire lab-grown diamond ring set in 10-karat gold. That price compares to around $5,800 for the same style made with natural diamonds, said Michelle Gill, Walmart's vice president of jewellery and accessories.

Engagements will boost jewelry sales this holiday season:Signet

SIGNET[®]

J E W E L L E R S

An increasing number of couples are getting engaged, which will boost jewelry sales this holiday season and in the year ahead, Signet's chief financial, strategy, and services officer Joan Hilson said. "We believe that engagements hit a trough in [the most recent] quarter," she says. "That bridal trough is behind us."

Signet has developed a suite of metrics to predict engagements—made up of 45 relationship milestones, such as attending a concert together, that it believes signal a couple's growing commitment. Those stats show that engagements fell sharply because the COVID-19 pandemic put a crimp in everyone's social lives. Signet expects engagements to remain down for some time, but it predicts they will start to recover in the months ahead and gain steam over the coming year. It helps that young people still believe in marriage

De Beers to stockpile more rough

De Beers is preparing to stockpile more unsold diamonds after this week's sight in Gaborone. It is expected to offer shareholders smaller allocations than usual, with rough prices showing no sign as yet of picking up, and to hold onto more stock as a result.

"We build up stocks of those because we are confident that over time the diamond price will increase and we will be able to sell that supply into the growing demand that we believe will come," CEO Al Cook told a briefing in Gaborone. November sales (cycle 9) crashed to just $80m, the lowest figure since it started reporting sight totals in 2016.

Tanishq opens two new retail stores in Texas, USA

Tanishq announces its continued expansion into the United States market with the opening of two new retail stores in Houston and Frisco, Texas. These openings follow the brand's initial entrance into the US with their flagship store opening in January of this year in Iselin, New Jersey.

The store in Frisco spans over 5,000 square feet, while the Houston store is 3,800 square feet. These mark Tanishq's second and third locations in the United States. With these new locations, Tanishq is meeting the Indian American community where the state of Texas has the second largest Indian American population in the country.

"With over 410 stores, we have now opened two more in the state of Texas bringing artfully crafted jewellery to the Indian diaspora residing in Houston and Frisco. As a true Tata brand, we aim to delight our customers and welcome endless visitors from all over the world to come enjoy magic behind these designs crafted by our designers and artisans." said Kuruvilla Markose, CEO - International Business Division, Titan Co Ltd.
